Q: Can only access localhost on my LAN I'm working on a hobby project at the moment. I have the website up and running, but I cannot access it from anything on my LAN. It works on the file server I'm developing it on, but I can't seem to make it work on my laptop. In my searches, I have come across the following posts: I'm using IIS 7.5. Can anyone suggest anything? Thanks. A:

Sounds like you want to add an IP address to you localhost only. This can be done by editing your hosts file (which your computer uses to resolve HTTP and FTP addresses) in the following path: C:\Windows\System32\Drivers\Etc\HOSTS Add your IP address to the list of localhosts. If it's already there, just add on the IP after it. Assuming your IP is 10.0.0.X, you could put in: 127.0.0.1 localhost 10.0.0.X 10.0.0.X If you're unsure, just to be safe, just put in 10.0.0.1 localhost and you can always change it later with FTP access to your host. Linux Foundation to offer Windows Server Technical Support Services for the next 3 years The Linux Foundation has signed a three year deal with Microsoft to provide technical support services for the Windows Server product line, according to a statement released on Friday. The deal between the two organizations, announced on Friday, will start on September 1st and the support services will be provided to enterprises on the Microsoft portfolio of products on a maintenance and support basis, according to the statement from the foundation.
